

Hooded Vulture

Hooded Vultures live across sub-Saharan Africa. They are one of the smallest species of vulture. Hooded Vultures are named for the scruff of white feathers which form a collar around their necks. They have brown bodies and bare heads, which range from dull grey to bright pink depending on the bird's mood.