

House Sparrow

The House Sparrow is one of the most recognizable species in the world. Native to Europe and parts of Asia, the House Sparrow is now found nearly everywhere there are humans.

Male House Sparrows in breeding plumage have grey underparts, reddish brown backs, and faces marked with grey and chestnut.

See colors and learn more

